* You can lose money by investing in a fund. Although the fund seeks to preserve the value of your investment at $1.00 per share, it cannot guarantee it will do so. An investment in the fund is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. The fund's sponsor has no legal obligation to provide financial support to the fund, and you should not expect that the sponsor will provide financial support to the fund at any time.

† The values of money market investments usually rise and fall in response to changes in interest rates. Although the fund only buys high quality investments, investments backed by a letter of credit carry the risk that the provider of the letter of credit will not be able to fulfill its obligations to the issuer. Certain securities in which the fund may invest, including securities issued by certain U.S. government agencies and U.S. government sponsored enterprises, are not guaranteed by the U.S. government or supported by the full faith and credit of the United States.

‡ The fund may impose a fee upon the sale of your shares or may temporarily suspend your ability to sell shares if the fund's liquidity falls below required minimums because of market conditions or other factors.

Mutual funds that invest in government securities are not guaranteed. Mortgage-backed securities are subject to prepayment risk and the risk that they may increase in value less when interest rates decline and decline in value more when interest rates rise. International investing involves certain risks, such as currency fluctuations, economic instability, and political developments. Lower-rated bonds may offer higher yields in return for more risk. Capital gains, if any, are taxable for federal and, in most cases, state purposes. For some investors, investment income may be subject to the federal alternative minimum tax. Income from federally exempt funds may be subject to state and local taxes. Tax-free funds may not be suitable for IRAs and other non-taxable accounts. The use of derivatives involves additional risks, such as the potential inability to terminate or sell derivative positions and the potential failure of the other party to the instrument to meet its obligations. Mutual funds that invest in bonds are subject to certain risks, including interest-rate, credit, and inflation risks. As interest rates rise, the prices of bonds fall. Long-term bonds are more exposed to interest-rate risk than short-term bonds. Unlike bonds, funds that invest in bonds have ongoing fees and expenses. Putnam Floating Rate Income Fund is not a money market fund and does not seek to maintain a stable net asset value. Although floating rate instruments may reduce risk related to changes in interest rates, they do not eliminate it. In addition, the fund is subject to other significant risks associated with below-investment-grade securities, such as the risk of default in payment on the instruments. Accordingly, the share price of Putnam Floating Rate Income Fund will fluctuate with market conditions.

Investors should carefully consider the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses of a fund before investing.
