The value of a smoother ride to investors

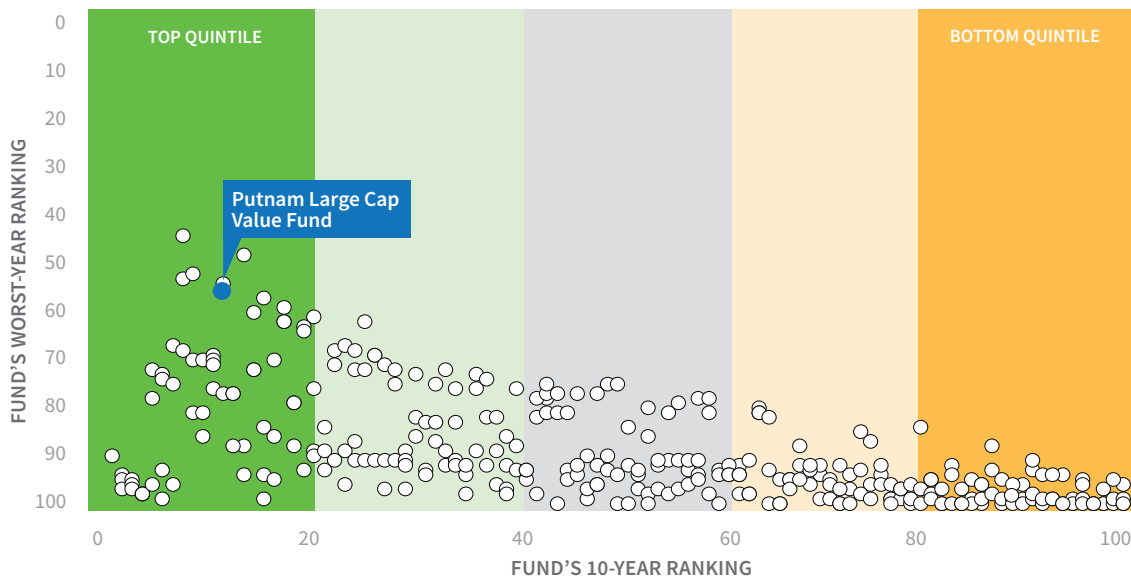

Putnam Large Cap Value Fund (PEIYX) built its 10-year ranking the right way — with consistency. It is the kind of smoother ride that can help investors stay invested and help returns compound into compelling longer-term results. To see this track record, compare the fund’s worst 1-year ranking to its peers. Figure 1 shows funds in the category by their worst 1-year calendar-year rankings on the vertical (y) axis.

- Most funds in the category had a lower 1-year ranking along the way than PEIYX.
- Even funds that ranked near PEIYX for 10 years — in the top quintile of the group (see the green section of Figure 1) — had a lower 1-year ranking at some point in the past decade.

Note on method: For this study, Putnam created a Large Cap Value Equity (LCVE) competitive group that includes all funds in the Lipper Large-Cap Value Funds category with a 10-year ranking as of December 31, 2022, adjusted for survivorship and fund reclassifications. This method removes funds that have a track record shorter than 10 years, as well as any funds that were reclassified to other categories. Some of the funds remaining in the set may have been in other categories earlier in the 10-year period. There are 322 funds meeting these requirements, and 96 distinct portfolios based on common fund name and family. All share classes that participate in the 10-year ranking through 2022 have all 10 contributing years in this set.

PEIYX annual rankings have risen even higher over the past decade

PEIYX in Lipper LCVE competitive group

Source/method: Putnam calculations using Lipper data. The dots represent the percentile rankings of Putnam Large Cap Value Fund Y shares (PEIYX) in the Lipper LCVE competitive group each year. This group includes all Lipper LCVE-classed funds with a 10-year ranking as of December 31, 2022, adjusted for survivorship and fund reclassifications. This step removes funds that have a track record shorter than 10 years, as well as any funds that were reclassified to other categories. Some of the funds remaining in the set may have been in other categories earlier in the 10-year period. There are 322 funds meeting these requirements and 96 distinct portfolios based on common fund name and family. All share classes that participate in the 10-year ranking through 2022 have all 10 contributing years in this set. Then, each fund is ranked by annual returns for the prior 10 years and a percentile ranking is determined for all the funds by year.

Multiyear consistency

Expanding the analysis to multiyear periods, in Figure 4, we see how the fund rose over longer holding periods. The dots represent PEIYX rankings over periods of different lengths as labeled at the top of each column. Each period was within the past decade.

- Fund rankings generally rose with longer holding periods.
- In 6-, 7-, 8-, and 9-year periods, the fund consistently ranked above the 40th percentile.

Current performance may be lower or higher than the quoted past performance, which cannot guarantee future results. Share price, principal value, and return will vary, and you may have a gain or a loss when you sell your shares. Performance of class Y shares assumes reinvestment of distributions and does not account for taxes. Returns for class Y shares prior to their inception are derived from the historical performance of class A shares (inception 6/15/77), which have not been adjusted for their lower expenses; had they, returns would have been higher. Class Y shares, available to investors through an asset-based fee program or for institutional clients, are sold without an initial sales charge and have no CDSC. Consider these risks before investing: Value stocks may fail to rebound, and the market may not favor value-style investing. Income provided by the fund may be reduced by changes in the dividend policies of, and the capital resources available at, the companies in which the fund invests. The value of investments in the fund's portfolio may fall or fail to rise over extended periods of time for a variety of reasons, including general economic, political, or financial market conditions; investor sentiment and market perceptions; government actions; geopolitical events or changes; and factors related to a specific issuer, geography, industry, or sector. These and other factors may lead to increased volatility and reduced liquidity in the fund's portfolio holdings.

From time to time, the fund may invest a significant portion of its assets in companies in one or more related industries or sectors, which would make the fund more vulnerable to adverse developments affecting those companies, industries, or sectors. International investing involves currency, economic, and political risks.
