

Putnam Large Cap Value Trust, Class IA Disclosure for ERISA 408(b)(2) Reporting

A. Background

Section 408(b)(2) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended (“ERISA”), requires a “covered service provider” to a retirement plan (“Plan”) to disclose the compensation that it receives in connection with providing services to the Plan. Putnam Fiduciary Trust Company, LLC (“PFTC”), as trustee of the Putnam Large Cap Value Trust (the “Fund”), in which your Plan has invested, is a covered service provider. This report is designed to meet Putnam’s disclosure obligations under ERISA Section 408(b)(2). Please review it in combination with the Plan’s participation agreement (or investment instructions) as well as the offering statement, declaration of trust, and most recent annual report for the Fund.

B. Explanation of Services

The Fund is a collective trust established and maintained by PFTC. As trustee, PFTC is responsible for making investment decisions for the Fund and managing the Fund’s other affairs and business. PFTC invests the assets in accordance with the investment objective of the Fund, which is described in detail in the offering statement.

PFTC has contracted with its affiliate, The Putnam Advisory Company, LLC (“PAC”), to provide certain non-discretionary investment advisory and administrative services to PFTC in connection with the Fund. The fees for these services will be borne by PFTC.

C. Fiduciary Status

PFTC is a fiduciary for the Fund, and accordingly, for your Plan with respect to the assets invested in the Fund. PAC is a fiduciary for your Plan and is an investment adviser registered under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

D. Compensation

Management Fee. Your plan pays a management fee equal to 0.33% of the plan’s assets invested in the Fund. This fee is deducted from your assets in the Fund. For more information, see the section entitled “Management Fees and Other Expenses” in the Fund’s offering statement.

The Fund also bears other operating expenses, as described further in the offering statement. For the Fund’s Total Annual Operating Expense Ratio, which includes all Fund expenses, please refer to the chart below under “Investment Disclosures.”

Bank Account Earnings. Putnam and its affiliates may earn additional compensation in the form of “float” (income earnings or bank fee credits) generated from investors’ balances in the Putnam bank accounts used for Fund subscriptions and redemptions/distributions. The item numbers in the description below correspond to the disclosure requirements listed under the “Obligations of Service Providers” as set forth in the Department of Labor’s Field Assistance Bulletin 2002-3.

1. Disclose the specific circumstances under which float will be earned and retained.

All Fund contributions, distributions, and transfers processed by Putnam as trustee of the Fund are initially deposited in one or more omnibus demand deposit accounts (“DDA”). The funds remain in the DDA only to the extent needed to process the particular transaction, as described in items 2 and 3 below.

Depending on the size of the overall balance in the DDA at the end of each business day and the current interest rate environment, a portion of the balance may be invested on an overnight basis in a money market mutual fund or other short term investment vehicle. The balance not invested remains in the DDA as a “buffer” for subscription/redemption activity. Balances invested overnight generate a short-term investment return.

Under current practice, any balances in the DDA that are not invested overnight generate bank fee credits, which are used to offset general banking expenses of Putnam. Accordingly, to the extent the float reduces these expenses, it forms part of the compensation payable to Putnam or its affiliates for the services it provides to the Fund.

2. In the case of float on contributions pending investment direction, establish, disclose and adhere to specific time frames within which cash pending investment direction will be invested following direction from the plan fiduciary, as well as any exceptions that might apply.

Generally, there is no float when a contribution is made to the Fund because Putnam receives the contribution or other transfer and completes the purchase and settlement (i.e. settles with the Fund) on the same day. If, however, there is a delay in the settlement (for example, if the order comes in late or funds are received without corresponding instructions), there would be float as described above for as long as the trade is delayed.

Putnam agrees to adhere to the foregoing procedures.

3. In the case of float on distributions, disclose when the float period commences (e.g., the date the check is requested, the date the check is written, the date the check is mailed) and ends (the date the check is presented for payment). Also disclose, and adhere to, time frames for mailing and any other administrative practices that might affect the duration of the float period.

Generally, there is no float when a redemption or transfer is made from the Fund because Putnam receives the request for distribution and completes the disbursement and settlement on the same day. If, however, there is a delay in the settlement (for example, if the transaction request comes in late), there would be float as described above for as long as the trade is delayed. In such case, the money is held in the DDA where it earns float until the settlement.

Dividends paid by the Putnam collective trust funds, if any, are currently settled same day and, as a result, typically would not generate float.

4. Disclose the rate of the float or the specific manner in which such rate will be determined. For example, earnings on cash pending investment and earnings on uncashed checks are generally at a money market interest rate.

Amounts that are invested on an overnight basis are invested in a money market mutual fund or similar investment vehicle selected by PFTC or its affiliates from time to time. Overnight investment returns are generally at money market rates.

Under current practice, any balances in the DDA that are not invested overnight do not earn explicit interest or other amounts; instead, the float is used to offset general banking expenses of Putnam based on a “credit” rate set by the bank holding the account. Depending on current interest rates, credits may be higher and lower than overnight cash returns, generally by a small margin (for example, rates may be based on a 3-month Treasury Bill rate after deducting a margin for bank capital requirements).

For information about the most recent returns and any investment vehicle used, as well as any relevant credit rates, please contact Putnam.

Soft dollar arrangements. Putnam, consistent with the safe harbor provisions of Section 28(e) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, obtains “research” from broker-dealers (“proprietary research”) or third parties paid by broker-dealers (“third-party research”) using commissions generated by security trades on behalf of clients. At present, Putnam generally does not use “soft dollars” to obtain “brokerage services.” The research so obtained includes: economic analysis, investment research, industry and company reviews, statistical information, market data, evaluations of investments, recommendations as to the purchase and sale of investments, access to company management, attendance at industry seminars, and performance measurement services. Any given broker-dealer or third-party research firm may provide Putnam with one or more of the above categories of research, and Putnam may acquire different research services from a firm over different periods. With the exception of market data, which is generally obtained as third-party research, there generally is no categorical distinction between third-party research and proprietary research. Third-party research may be provided by firms that are registered broker-dealers but with whom Putnam does not trade. Additional information regarding soft dollars and/or brokerage and research services is provided in Part 2 (including the section titled “Brokerage Practices”) of the Form ADV for The Putnam Advisory Company, LLC, which serves as sub-adviser to PFTC for the Fund, which is available upon request.

Below is a list of the top 20 third-party and proprietary research providers from whom Putnam received research in 2019. The research was not provided to Putnam with respect to any specific Putnam investment product or retirement plan client and, if applicable, is generally not provided in relation to fixed income transactions. As a result, it is impracticable to provide a reasonable estimate of the value of the services received applicable to any specific plan. Putnam received research from other providers in 2019 which was of insubstantial value with respect to any plan and therefore not provided below.
