Putnam Convertible Securities Fund

Summary Prospectus dated February 29, 2024

Effective immediately, the sub-section Investments in the section Investments, risks, and performance is deleted in its entirety and replaced with the following:

Investments

We invest mainly in convertible securities of U.S. companies. Under normal circumstances, we invest at least 80% of the fund's net assets in convertible securities. This policy may be changed only after 60 days' notice to shareholders. Convertible securities combine the investment characteristics of bonds and common stocks. Convertible securities include bonds, preferred stocks and other instruments that can be converted into or exchanged for common stock or equivalent value. A significant portion of the convertible securities we buy are below-investment-grade (sometimes referred to as "junk bonds"). The fund invests significantly in convertible bonds that have intermediate- to long-term stated maturities (i.e., three years or longer), but often contain "put" features, which allow bondholders to sell the bond back to the company under specified circumstances, that result in shorter effective maturities. When deciding whether to buy or sell investments, we may consider, among other factors: (i) a security's structural features, such as its position in a company's capital structure and "put" and "call" features (a company's right to repurchase the security under specified circumstances is a "call" feature); (ii) credit and prepayment risks; and (iii) with respect to a company's common stock underlying a convertible security, the stock's valuation and the company's financial strength, growth potential, competitive position in its industry, projected future earnings, cash flows and dividends.

Shareholders should retain this Supplement for future reference.

Example

The following hypothetical example is intended to help you compare the cost of investing in the fund with the cost of investing in other funds. It assumes that you invest $10,000 in the fund for the time periods indicated and then, except as indicated, redeem all your shares at the end of those periods. It assumes a 5% return on your investment each year and that the fund's operating expenses remain the same. Your actual costs may be higher or lower.

Portfolio turnover

The fund pays transaction-related costs, such as commissions, when it buys and sells securities (or "turns over" its portfolio). A higher turnover rate may indicate higher transaction costs and may result in higher taxes when the fund's shares are held in a taxable account. These costs, which are not reflected in annual fund operating expenses or the above example, affect fund performance. The fund's turnover rate in the most recent fiscal year was 64%.

Investments, risks, and performance

Investments

We invest mainly in convertible securities of U.S. companies. Under normal circumstances, we invest at least 80% of the fund's net assets in convertible securities. This policy may be changed only after 60 days' notice to shareholders. Convertible securities combine the investment characteristics of bonds and common stocks. A significant portion of the convertible securities we buy are below-investment-grade (sometimes referred to as "junk bonds"). The convertible bonds we buy usually have intermediate-to long-term stated maturities (i.e., three years or longer), but often contain "put" features, which allow bondholders to sell the bond back to the company under specified circumstances, that result in shorter effective maturities. When deciding whether to buy or sell investments, we may consider, among other factors: (i) a security's structural features, such as its position in a company's capital structure and "put" and "call" features (a company's right to repurchase the security under specified circumstances is a "call" feature); (ii) credit and prepayment risks; and (iii) with respect to a company's common stock underlying a convertible security, the stock's valuation and the company's financial strength, growth potential, competitive position in its industry, projected future earnings, cash flows and dividends.

Risks

It is important to understand that you can lose money by investing in the fund.

The value of investments in the fund's portfolio may fall or fail to rise over extended periods of time for a variety of reasons, including general economic, political or financial market conditions, investor sentiment and market perceptions, government actions, geopolitical events or changes, outbreaks of infectious illnesses or other widespread public health issues, and factors related to a specific issuer, asset class, geography, industry or sector. These and other factors may lead to increased volatility and reduced liquidity in the fund's portfolio holdings, may negatively impact the fund's performance, and may exacerbate other risks to which the fund is subject.

These risks are generally greater for convertible securities issued by small and midsize companies (which may constitute a significant portion of the fund's investments from time to time). The value of convertible securities may be adversely affected by changes in the prices of underlying common stocks. Convertible securities tend to provide higher yields than common stocks. However, a higher yield may not protect investors against the risk of loss or adequately mitigate any loss associated with a decline in the price of a convertible security. Convertible securities are subject to credit risk, which is the risk that an issuer of the fund's investments may default on payment of interest or principal. Credit risk is generally greater for below-investment-grade convertible securities (a significant part of the fund's investments), which can be more sensitive to changes in markets, credit conditions, and interest rates, and may be considered speculative. Generally, convertible securities may be less sensitive to interest rate changes than non-convertible bonds as a result of convertible securities' convertibility and "put" features. Interest rate risk is generally greater for longer-term bonds and convertible securities whose underlying stock price has fallen significantly below the conversion price. Bond investments may be more susceptible to downgrades or defaults during economic downturns or other periods of economic stress.

There is no guarantee that the investment techniques, analyses, or judgments that we apply in making investment decisions for the fund will produce the intended outcome or that the investments we select for the fund will perform as well as other securities that were not selected for the fund. We, or the fund's other service providers, may experience disruptions or operating errors that could negatively impact the fund.

The fund may not achieve its goal, and it is not intended to be a complete investment program. An investment in the fund is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency.

Performance

The performance information below gives some indication of the risks associated with an investment in the fund by showing the fund's performance year to year and over time. The bar chart does not reflect the impact of sales charges. If it did, performance would be lower. Please remember that past performance is not necessarily an indication of future results. Monthly performance figures for the fund are available at putnam.com.
